

I am opposed to any weakening of Indiana's Telephone Privacy law. An association of banks is attempting to make banks exempt allowing them to call their customers. The Telephone Privacy Law's passage was a very refreshing example of government addressing their constituencies concerns. Diluting the law and allowing more exemptions than are already in place would be a shame and setting a bad precedent for other industries to justify they be exempt as well. This could open up a big can of worms. Please do not let the size and pull of the banking industry lobby outweigh the millions of individuals who have let it be known they think this law is important by signing up for the do not call list. Thank you. Terry Schroeder.
